THREE CANDIDATES FOR GOV-ERNOR.

In this issue appears the platform of the Republican party of Nevada, which our readers will no doubt peruse with interest. We are also publishing the Democratic platform and next week will probably add the Silver party platform, thus enabling every voter in the county to study carefully for himself and as all of them have been hitherto strangers to many White Piners, we deem it no more than fair to our read- One Representative in Congress ers, who include members of all of these One Governor, parties, to print the following short One Lieutenant Governor, sketch of each, written by their friends: One Justice of Supreme Court,

REINHOLD SADLER.

The Lovelock Tribune says: We One State Controller, never tire repeating the immortal words One Attorney General, of Lincoln, a government of the people One Surveyor General, for the people and by the people. Upon this foundation rests America's greatthis foundation rests America's greatness. It is this principle that bids the aristocrat step down from the powder ed life and livery of the city to the heat and dust of the desert and be one among us. And it is this principle which clevates the laborer in the field to the halls of state and saves to the world all Judicial District. halls of state and saves to the world all that is best of talent and genius in man.

No one will deny to Reinhold Sadler the fact that he is a man of the people. His life has not been in gilded halls. He has been a pioneer of the mountains where luxury was unknown and toil was the lot of all. Though his efforts were rewarded with a generous share of fortune's stores he ever remained a man of the neonle.

Reinhold Sadler has made a good governor, and what more do we ask? His acts as chief executive bear the inspection of all. He has had trying ordeals to go through, but he has made no mistakes, and in every instance the interests of the people have been his foremest consideration.

One does not have to bow to a king on a pedestal to ask a favor of Reinhold Sadler. He stands alike to the man in the street and the banker in the count-on a pedestal to ask a favor of Reinhold Sadler. He stands alike to the man in the street and the banker in the counting-room, and hears impartially the wants of all. He is ever ready to listen to the voice of reason.

Many a still vote will fall to Reinhold Sadler on election day from people he has befriended in the past. He has been the miner's friend and the rancher's, and they are the bone and sinew of the State. Such people are not ungrateful and the rancher in the rancher's in the past of the state. GEORGE RUSSELL.

George Russell, of Elko county, the Democratic nominee was a resident of Nevada before its admission as a state. He is a man of affairs and has been engaged in active business since his arrival in the then territory. As a clear headed business man he has probably no superior in the state and if there is any superior in recognition in the state and it there is any superior in recognition in the state and it should be a superior in the state and if there is any superior in recognition is superior to the state and if there is any superior in the state and if there is any question in regard to his integrity it has never come to our knowledge. He has always taken a deep interest in public affairs and is as well informed concerning the resources and needs of the State as anyone within its boundaries. His legislative record shows, when he was the only Democrat in the Assemly, six years ago, that while disposed at all times to treat the railroad corporation fairly, he stood squarely for the rights of the people and never was subservient to the lobby boss of the legislature. He has always been a consistent Democrat the lobby boss of the legislature. He has always been a consistent Democrat although like thousands of others of his party he voted for Weaver and Field as against gold bug Cleveland in 1892 but resumed his proper place in the Democratic party when it had rid itself of its gold standard rulers. If elected his administration will be a clean, respectable and economic one.—Tuscarora Times-Review.

Platform.

Platform and Resolutions of the Republican Party, adopted September 18, 1888.— The Republican Party of Nevada, in State convention assembled at Reno, this 14th day of September 1889 enters upon the present campaign with the good of the State and Nation at heart, devoted to the best interests of all, and as annum istory of its views upon the political questions of the day, and as a platform upon which the Republican party of Nevada and its candidates shall stand, does hereby resolve:

Resolved: That in behalf of the Republican party of the State of Nevada we thank our galiant soldiers who have periled their lives in defense of the country and in upholding the sacred honor of its flag. To Dewey, Schley, Sampson, Weinwright and Hobson for their Drilliant victories upon the sea, and to Miles, Shafter, Wheeler, Roosevelt and Lawton, our faithful leaders and beave defenders upon land the undaying gratitude of the nation is due. For those by a survivors who are returning disabled and with honorable wounds received in the service of their country, ample provisions for just pensions should be made by Congress, unhampered by technicalities and burdensome restrictions. We venerate our fallen keroes Gridley, O'Neil Bagley, Fish and all the others who fell fignting beneath the Stars and Stripes. They are the Nation's dead. Their memories will be en-brined in the hearts of a grateful people, a d the Republican party stands pledged to the care of their widows and orph ns.

Resolved, That history has inscribed on her pages records of wars of conquest, wars for ambition and revenge, wars for religion and wars for independence, but in the closing years of this century and in the besinning of a new erin the history of the world, it has been reserved from unble republic to wage a war solely in the cause of humanity. We congratulate the American people on the successful termination of this war, and commend wm. McKinley, President, stateman, soldier, citizen, for his firness in his stand for freible intervention, as justi mitted to the people of the class of cision.

Resolved: That we reiterate our faith in, and devotion to, the great Republican principles of bi-metallism, protection and reciprocity. We are firmly convinced that the final adjustment of the money question must come by and throthe Republican party. The party is pledged to bi-metallism. We thorefore teel-re that the settlement of this important question may saftly be left to the great Republican party of the Nation.

PLATFORM.

The Democrate of Nevada in Convention assembled declare as follows: We endorse every line, word and syllable of the platform adopted by the Democratic National Convention in Chicago in 1896, with particular emphasis upon the resolution advocating the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver and without the aid or consent of any nation on the face of the earth.

We glory in the achievements of the Army and Navy, in the late war with Spain, and we commend the Democratic Congressmen in their course upon the prosecution of the war, as patriotic, statesmanlike and compatible with the honor and dignity of our nation.

We agree with Senator Teller, an ardent Protectionist, that the Dingley law was formulated and passed, not for the protection of American labor, nor for the purpose of revenue for the government, but exclusively in the interest of the monopolies and trusts, which furnished the corruption money to car-ry on the McKinley campaign. We furthermore declare without fear of successful contradiction, that any or all of the provisions of the infamous law do not, directly or indirectly, benefit to the amount of a farthing one hundred actual residents of Nevada, while the entire people of the State are additionally taxed in increased prices of the necessaries of life to an amount more than sufficient to defray the entire ex-penses of the State government. And it is with shame and humiliation that we point to the fact that this measure so distressful to the people of Nevada was passed by the aid of our Senators, without which it could never have be-begins of the harty, a complex system of the property of the strateght as will be commensurate to the maintenance of the dignity and honor of the republis the strated for the policy of the strategy of the property of the republish the strategy of the policy of the property of the republish the strategy of the policy of the property of the property corruption as has and which is now prevailing in our Senatorial elections.

The Democratic Party of Nevada is in favor of utilizing and developing the natural resources of the State-We therefore advocate a policy of internal improvements by which the surplos water of our rivers may be impounded in reservoirs and used in reclaiming and irrigating the unoccupied agricultural
